

Volunteer Opportunities

Washington state's oldest charity and its foundation are expanding the use of the Jessie Dyslin Ranch property in order to put more youth and families to work, improve the security of the local food network, establish healthy kids programs to combat childhood obesity and provide a model for preservation and restoration of urban farm land and food production.

The property is located at
3505 - 104th Street East,
Tacoma, WA 98446.

The property is home to the social service programs run by GATEWAYS, including foster care placement and support services, an early learning center, a co-parenting education center, the agricultural activities of the Farm To Market Project and the STOPGAP job training program. 100% of our revenue goes to fund our programs.

There are many projects to be completed and we need your help! Please support our efforts by volunteering your time and skills. For more information or to sign up, see our websites and contacts listed below.
